Weather

Now for todays weather.

NOAA Alerts

NOAA has issued weather alerts for the following areas in the Ham Radio Today listening area.

Weather Message: for the following county, Greene, Pennsylvania, and the following counties: In West Virginia, Marion, Monongalia and Wetzel. Snow accumulation, 3 - 5 inches. Periods of most intense snow during the day on Tuesday. Snow showers will gradually taper down through Tuesday night. Hazardous travel conditions are expected due to snow.

Weather Message: for the following counties. In West Virginia: Harrison, and Taylor. Hazard types, Snow, and Snow Accumulations. Snow accumulations of 2 - 6 inches over a 36 hour period. Some settling and melting of falling snow is expected during the advisory period. Snow showers will be around for the mid-week period with varying intensity. Impacts indicate: Travel may be difficult at times. Visibility will be limited at times.

A winter weather advisory for snow means periods of snow will cause primarily travel difficulties. Be prepared for snow covered roads and limited visibility, and use caution while driving.

BREAK

Solar Weather

Now for Solar Weather

Solar activity is expected to continue at very low levels with occasional C-Class flares likely. Solar wind parameters are expected to decrease as the negative polarity Coronal Hole High Speed Stream influences wane through today. However, an enhancement is likely due to the anticipated arrival of a glancing blow CME from February 5th. The geomagnetic field is expected to reach active levels for a few synoptic periods today in response to the CME effects.

The greatest expected Planetary K-index for today is 4 with an average of 3.13.

The solar radiation storm forecast for an S1 or greater storm is 1%

No radio blackouts were observed over the past 24 hours. The chance for an R1 to R2 radio blackout for today is 10 % with the chance of an R3 or greater blackout is 1%

For more information visit the NOAA Space Weather Prediction Center at www.swpc.noaa.gov. For a synopsis of the current band conditions, visit the band conditions chart at the Monongalia Wireless Association's website at www.W8MWA.org.
